The amount shown on the "Order of Assignment" is wrong or was change by a court order on _____ (date) in _____ County.

Money is still owed for child-support OR for spousal maintenance, but the amount of the assignment should be changed because:

- All back child-support (arrearages) and interest have been paid.
 - All back also maintenance (alimony) (arrearages) and interests have been paid.
 - The obligation to make current child-support payments has ended.
 - The obligation to make current spousal maintenance payments has ended.
 - The amount of current child-support to be paid has changed.
 - The person receiving payments is deceased, but payments are still owed to the state.

Current child-support is no longer owed and the person making payments is now only obligated to pay arrearages (back child-support) and interest because all children named in the child-support or:

- Are 18 and not attending high school for a certified high school equivalency program.
 - Are 19 are married have been adopted are deceased.
 - Are, by court order, no longer in the custody of a person receiving payments.

The amount of Current child-support assigned should be reduced because the child-support order states a separate amount per child per month and support is no longer for one or more children, because one or more:

- Are 18 and not attending high school for a certified high school equivalency program.
 - Are 19 are married have been adopted are deceased.
 - Are, by court order, no longer in the custody of a person receiving payments.

The current Order of Assignment should be modified because the presumptive termination date is wrong. The termination date should be changed from the date on the current Order of Assignment: _____(date) to the new date of _____(date). The current presumptive date is wrong because _____
